Iceland is the second largest island in Europe. The very first people to live in Iceland arrived there from Northern Europe just 1,200 years ago. For hundreds of years, Iceland was a part of Norway and then Denmark until 1918, when it became an independent country. At one time it was one of the poorest countries in the world – now it is one of the wealthiest and most modern countries. Fishing and tourism are very important parts of Iceland's healthy economy. Iceland is unusual for many reasons. One of these is its very small population, which is only about 320,000. Reykjavik, the capital city, is home to about 2/3 of the population of Iceland, while about 19,000 people are foreigners - workers from other countries. The climate is very cold. Iceland is wellknown for its many beautiful glaciers. These are large mountains of ice and snow that you can see in both summer and winter. In addition, there are nine large, active volcanoes located all over the island. Just a few years ago, in May 2011, one of these volcanoes exploded, releasing fire, rocks and smoke into the air; so, air travel had to stop in many European countries for several weeks.
